The end is nigh and yet for many of us it seems like it has just begun.

It would appear implausible that one could truly say that after 6 years of exams, dead lines, SACs and detentions that one would not be eager to jettison school life. Truthfully, to say that I will miss Salesian College is an understatement. While indeed we are in transit as we move to new and more colourful periods of our life I'm proud that we will never part from our Heritage as a Salesian. The recognition that I will never lose my belonging will find expression through the values and morals that have been embedded within my persona.

The aspect of leadership is indeed quite daunting and to the most perverse extent challenges these values that have been entrenched within our characters. It is a time of compromise for the greater good. Quality leadership spawns from the right mind set. College leadership is about giving to the College from which we have taken so much.

Of course the efficacy of school leadership is contingent upon the team that works towards a common goal. I am humbled and indeed honoured to have worked with many valuable members of the leadership team this year, with special appreciation extended to worthy vice captains, Dan Halloran and Shrasta Shrestha. The sum of the parts is always greater than the whole and I can say for certain that this year we left nothing undared through lack of effort.

To the many teachers who have impacted on either my school life or my personal life I will be forever indebted. Special thanks to Mr Busscher for his guidance and direction, which has made our final year of schooling that bit easier.

To my fellow Year 12 students, I wish everyone all the best with your studies and earnestly hope that every one of you will achieve results that will deliver personal happiness and satisfaction. Take with you the happy memories of six years, which have passed by so quickly, cherish the mateship that categorized our year level and continue on your own prescribed 'Journey of Excellence'.

No doubt I will miss the familiarity and all that is associated with school life. The recognition of that intangible aspect that I have inherited provides me with a rigid framework from which future aspirations can be propelled.

My utmost gratitude to Salesian College for the guidance I have received. I wish that current and future students will be as appreciative as I am for being afforded the opportunity of receiving a Salesian education.

Good bye and God bless.
